

Radnor's Vision for the Curriculum for Wales

At Radnor the learner is at the heart of our vision for the Curriculum for Wales.

Our supportive, nurturing atmosphere and inclusive ethos enable us to positively impact all members of our school community, encouraging our pupils to be the best they can be.

We believe that the best outcomes for our pupils, regardless of circumstances, are achieved when school, parents, carers and the wider community work together.

We aim to:

- Promote the reality of continual learning, helping our learners become independent, critical thinkers and lifelong learners who embrace opportunity
- Provide our learners with the skills to communicate safely and positively and succeed in a technologically changing world
- Nurture our learners to become valuable contributors to society, as well rounded, resilient, culturally aware and environmentally responsible citizens who are respectful of diversity
- Give our learners the skills to become mindful of wellbeing and resilience, developing as healthy, confident individuals
- Foster in our learners a genuine respect for themselves, their development, and others in our school community

Topic Based Approach

At Radnor we employ a topic based approach, where pupils' ideas and interests act as a springboard for their learning experiences.

Within these topics, the six Areas of Learning and Experience are woven together to offer authentic experiences and develop skills with a focus on real life situations, to realise the Four Core Purposes.

Cross Curricular Responsibilities

The six areas of learning and experience are supported by three Cross Curricular Responsibilities the purpose of which is to empower pupils to engage confidently in the modern world, and to become inspired.

We are mindful that engaging with history, culture and language, including that of Wales, enables our learners to develop their identity and place within the world and encourages them to understand their rights under the UNCRC.

As such we ensure that children experience both an international, Welsh and local perspective across the curriculum.

Helping our pupils develop a love of learning, for life.
